

THE SUIT UPGRADE

Marketing professional Rob O Connor's love affair with London is the biggest influence on his look. Rob says he "favours traditionally crafted pieces that have a contemporary twist, for subtle distinction". Bespoke tailor Ascots and Chapels had just the suit in mind.

We made Rob a one-button charcoal grey two-piece suit that is very contemporary (hence the short coat and slim lapels) and complements his build. As a young professional, he needed a suit that was versatile enough to be worn formally with a tie or casually without. We completed the look with a plain white shirt, black tie and a patterned black pocket square with white border. Folded in a loose crown it gives the wearer a bit of devil-may-care informality, which encapsulates Rob's laid-back personality.

▲ Subtle pocket details rather than a colourful lining give this suit an understated feel

▲ Contrast stitching on the cuff and a sleeve short enough to display a shirt cuff will make you stand out in the right way

◀ A pocket square completes a monochrome look that is understated but oozes class.
